ANZAC DAY

APRIL 25

When is Anzac Day?

The Catafalque Party made up of members from Australia's Federation Guard, mount the Catafalque at the beginning of the Lone Pine Service at Gallipoli. Anzac Day falls on the 25th of April each year. The 25th of April was officially named Anzac Day in 1916.

What does 'ANZAC' stand for?

'ANZAC' stands for Australian and New Zealand Army Corps.

On the 25th of April 1915, Australian and New Zealand soldiers formed part of the allied expedition that set out to capture the Gallipoli peninsula. These became known as Anzacs and the pride they took in that name continues to this day.

Why is this day special to Australians?

On the morning of 25 April 1915, the Anzacs set out to capture the Gallipoli peninsula in order to open the Dardanelles to the allied navies. The objective was to capture Constantinople (now Istanbul in Turkey), the capital of the Ottoman Empire, and an ally of Germany.

The Anzacs landed on Gallipoli and met fierce resistance from the Ottoman Turkish defenders. Their plan to knock Turkey out of the war quickly became a stalemate, and the campaign dragged on for eight months.

At the end of 1915, the allied forces were evacuated. Both sides suffered heavy casualties and endured great hardships. Over 8,000 Australian soldiers were killed. News of the landing on Gallipoli and the events that followed had a profound impact on Australians at home. The 25th of April soon became the day on which Australians remember the sacrifice of those who had died in the war.

The Anzacs were courageous and although the Gallipoli campaign failed in its military objectives, the Australian and New Zealand actions during the campaign left us all a powerful legacy.

What does Anzac Day mean today?

With the coming of the Second World War, Anzac Day also served to commemorate the lives of Australians who died in that war. The meaning of Anzac Day today includes the remembrance of all Australians killed in military operations.

What happens on Anzac Day?

Anzac Day remembrance takes two forms. Commemorative services are held at dawn – the time of the original landing in Gallipoli – across the nation. Later in the day, ex-servicemen and women meet to take part in marches through the major cities and in many smaller centres. Commemorative ceremonies are more formal and are held at war memorials around the country.

Members from Australia's Federation Guard form a catafalque party around the Tomb of the Unknown Australian Soldier at the Australian War Memorial.

A typical Anzac Day ceremony may include the following features: an introduction, hymn, prayer, an address, laying of wreaths, a recitation, the Last Post, a period of silence, either the Rouse or the Reveille, and the national anthem. After the Memorial's ceremony, families often place red poppies beside the names of relatives on the Memorial's Roll of Honour, as they also do after Remembrance Day services.

Rosemary is also traditionally worn on Anzac Day, and sometimes on Remembrance Day. Rosemary has particular significance for Australians as it is found growing wild on the Gallipoli peninsula. Since ancient times, this aromatic herb has been believed to have properties to improve the memory.

The Anzac Biscuit

During World War One, the friends and families of soldiers and community groups sent food to the fighting men. Due to the time delays in getting food items to the front lines, they had to send food that would remain edible, without refrigeration, for long periods of time that retained high nutritional value; the Anzac biscuit met this need.

Although there are variations, the basic ingredients are: rolled oats, sugar, plain flour, coconut, butter, golden syrup or treacle, bicarbonate of soda, and boiling water.

The biscuit was first known as the Soldiers' Biscuit. The current name, Anzac Biscuit, has as much to do with Australia's desire to recognise the Anzac tradition and the Anzac biscuit as part of the staple diet at Gallipoli.

The Anzac biscuit is one of the few commodities that can be legally marketed in Australia using the word 'Anzac', which is protected by Federal Legislation.

Anzac Day Poem: He ain't heavy - he's my brother

*As the barges left the ships ere of the break of dawn
With our Soldiers whispering to each in the early misty morn
So many so young and so full of fear
No turning back now or no time to shed a tear
They waded through water that was neck high to reach the shore
As it was Gallipoli Peninsula where they were heading for
They were met with open fire, as they tried scatter to the beach
With steep barren slopes in sight, for cover desperate to reach
So many Diggers died on that day
Alongside "brother in arms" pulling "dog tags" off dead soldiers all along the way
To try to identify their mate at the very end
Who had just become their closest friend?
They carried the dead and wounded through mud, blood & tears
Humped across their shoulders, they carried them with no fear
"He ain't heavy - he's my brother now"
He deserves recognition for his family and country somehow
Medical ships with Australian nurses waited off the shores of Gallipoli that day
To comfort our soldiers as they were set free from pain and slowly drifted away
Lost limbs, shrapnel wounds that never repair
But our Aussie nurses took care of our soldiers with respect and with care
For months on end this war continued on
And our soldiers found comfort from singing this song
"Waltzing Matilda" was deep in their hearts
And the morale would lift in the troops
When they all would start
So proud we all are of our memories as we look back
Of 105 years of our Australian and New Zealand "diggers" known as ANZACS
We raise our flag of red, white and blue
In memory of our "Diggers" of other wars too*
